

System Dynamics R&D Series 2020 Systemic Supervision

Access Leadership is pleased to bring you a series of 10 x two-hour group supervision sessions for 2020. The sessions are co-developed and facilitated by Karen Tweedie MCC of KT Consulting and Dean Mason of Leading Well and run from February to November.

Building on the learnings from the last four years' R&D workshops in System Dynamics, this series will focus on providing participants with supervision using systemic principles and constellation methods. Sessions will be held on the 2nd Thursday of every month (except April, which will be the 3rd Thursday) from 4:30 to 6:30.

Systemic Supervision is an invitation to learn and gain support in three key ways: to hone individual approaches of responding to client issues, to access and contribute to the wisdom of like-minded professionals, and to experience new ways of observing and understanding dynamics usually hidden from view.

About System Dynamics

The field of System Dynamics comprises a set of five organising principles that support healthy organisational functioning. The application of Systemic Principles in leadership situations enables leaders and those who support them to identify the multiple forces at play, make clear decisions and approach change initiatives within any organisational system with the most holistic and inclusive view

The series will be co-facilitated by Karen Tweedie of KT Consulting and Dean Mason of Leading Well

Karen Tweedie MCC is an internationally recognised executive coach and former President of the International Coach Federation (ICF). Karen's unique approach to coaching is informed by the systemic mindset, seeing an individual in terms of the broader systems they inhabit. Karen uses the mapping process to gain insight into an existing client system, to reveal the hidden dynamics at play, to bring to light new perspectives and possibilities, to test approaches and to re-focus efforts to bring about desired results.

Dean Mason is a senior business leadership adviser with over 30 years' experience across many Australian industries, some that have boomed (ICT) and others that have undergone major transition, especially in manufacturing. Combined with his front-line experience of guiding organisations and individuals through complex change, Dean has trained extensively in systemic constellation work, mindfulness, martial arts and various coaching methodologies to inform the facilitation expertise he brings to this workshop.
